Impending doom: Multiple threats plague season 2 of 'Salvation'

By K.A. Taylor
TV Media

Science fiction is increasingly becoming science fact. The dreams of golden era writers and directors, while perhaps a bit exaggerated, are more prevalent now than ever before. Space exploration is advancing, with multiple groups and organizations vowing to establish a new home on Mars. This might explain why so many of us are captivated by intergalactic what-ifs, and why many summer TV viewers are tuning in to the sci-fi drama "Salvation," now in its second season, with a new episode airing Monday, July 16, on CBS.

"Salvation" takes place in present-day America, using modern technology and a dash of fictional liberty to set the stage. Liam Cole (Charlie Row, "Red Band Society") is a highly intellectual MIT graduate student whose research has been devoted to mapping the unknown parts of space. What Liam didn't anticipate, however, was that his program would uncover a serious, impending threat to the entire planet: an asteroid set to collide with Earth in 186 days. Anxious to get the data to the government, Liam reaches out to his professor, but after the professor goes missing, he turns to his one other option: scientific genius Darius Tanz (Santiago Cabrera, "Big Little Lies"), a recent speaker at MIT who's still — thankfully — in town.

Armed with this new, time-sensitive information, Darius and Liam head to the Pentagon and deliver the news to the Department of Defense's deputy secretary, Harris Edwards (Ian Anthony Dale, "Hawaii Five-0"). Harris and DOD public affairs press secretary Grace Barrows (Jennifer Finnigan, "Tyrant") have no choice but to let these two skilled scientists into a covert operation called Sampson, revealing that the government was already well aware of the threat but had chosen to keep it hidden in order to prevent mass pandemonium.

The thrilling conclusion of season 1 saw the president reinstated, TESS's source code given up to RE/SYST and the group divided, awaiting the impeding likely demise of the East Coast. Harris and Grace, along with the rest of the selected crew, are all stowed away within a hangar, ready to board the Ark if necessary, while Darius and Liam work from a secure location to try to determine another way to prevent Earth's destruction.

Santiago Cabrera in "Salvation"

With the second season now underway, it's clear to see that the danger is compounding. RE/SYST is threatening nuclear action, the asteroid's imminent collision continues to present a dire outlook for humanity, and neither situation can be resolved without global co-operation. Meanwhile, Harris and Grace are struggling to quell potential chaos within the hangar as the newly informed citizens learn to accept their fate.

In a recent interview with KCAL9 CBS Los Angeles, Finnigan touched on the growing tension of a disaster-bent narrative. The actress notes that, while "the show is mostly about this impeding asteroid — the sort of scaring, impending doom of that," people are "still living [their lives]," as the truth makes it difficult for people to accept, which leads them to set out a course of action that reveals what's truly important to them. Now that "the public knows" and "the secret is out ... people go bananas." An event such as this will no doubt "bring out the best" or to "bring out the worst [in us]," but ultimately, Finnigan believes that the most realistic depiction — something that the series strives to exhibit — is where the best and worst in us collide.

A large part of the show's success is thanks to the popular disaster genre. Most prominent in film, the genre was born in 1901 with a silent film called "Fire!," though "Salvation" is likely drawing more so from the golden era of disaster cinema, circa the 1970s. Films such as "Airport" (1970), "Earthquake" (1974) and "Meteor" (1979) gave audiences a thirst for the point at which science fiction and dramatic thrillers meet. In the late 1990s, a new wave of disaster films arrived that, like "Salvation," saw our biggest threat coming from the stars. "Independence Day" (1996), "Deep Impact" (1998) and "Armageddon" (1998) are just three of the space-based dramatic thrillers that signified this once niche subcategory of the genre growing increasingly prominent.

Not constricted by the two-to-three-hour runtime of its big-screen forerunners, "Salvation" provides deeper insight into the human reactions and cost of catastrophic events, rather than placing emphasis on fantastic explosions, tidal waves and meteor collisions. Despite the imminence of the threat, audiences find themselves more compelled by the characters' narratives than a desire to witness destruction, which is a refreshing take on a genre increasingly oversaturated with CGI and mass destruction.

As season 2 of "Salvation" progresses, the price of loyalty will increase in value. As the asteroid continues its journey toward Earth, Harris, Grace, Liam and Darius will do all they can to try and maintain a sense of calm while uncovering a means by which disaster might ultimately be prevented. If all else fails, there is, of course, the Ark, but that will mean biding a tearful adieu to two beloved characters. Find out the fates of our daring heroes and the planet itself, as "Salvation" continues with a new episode airing Monday, July 16, on CBS.

So You Think You Can Dance

WFXB 43 8:00 p.m.

Talented dancers hit the stage to prove they've got what it takes to be a superstar in a new episode of this reality TV series. They perform various styles of dance for judges Mary Murphy, Nigel Lythgoe and Vanessa Hudgens.

Man With a Plan

WBTW 13 8:30 p.m.

Adam (Matt LeBlanc) notices that his father (Stacy Keach) is becoming increasingly forgetful in this rebroadcast, but he struggles with the best way to approach him about it. Liza Snyder and Kevin Nealon also star in this comedy.

Kevin Nealon and Matt LeBlanc star in "Man With a Plan"

Whose Line Is It Anyway?

WWMB 21 9:00 p.m.

Keegan-Michael Key makes a special guest appearance in this new episode. He puts his comedic skills to the test as he participates in improv games prompted by ideas from the studio audience. Aisha Tyler hosts.

Dietland

AMC 9:00 p.m.

Plum (Joy Nash) is on cloud nine after her brush with fame in this new episode. However, her sense of renewed purpose is threatened when she goes on a date. Julianna Margulies, Rowena King and Robin Weigert also star.

All-Star

WFXB 43 8:00 p.m.

Baseball fans won't want to miss the action as the best players in the National League take on the best in the American League during this year's All-Star Game. This year, the highly anticipated game takes place at Nationals Park in Washington, D.C.

Bull

WBTW 13 9:00 p.m.

A teacher's union turns to Bull (Michael Weatherly) for help when a woman it represents faces prosecution in this rebroadcast. She's accused of helping a student with a critical exam, but evidence mounts that she may be just a scapegoat.

Chase, Todd and Savannah Chrisley from "Chrisley Knows Best"

Animal Kingdom

TNT 9:00 p.m.

J (Finn Cole) and Deran (Jake Weary) are left stranded when the weed heist goes awry in this new episode. Elsewhere, Craig (Ben Robson) tries to keep the peace between Pope (Shawn Hatosy) and Billy (Denis Leary).

Chrisley Knows Best

USA 10:00 p.m.

Julie agrees to let Chase help her and Allison train for a five-kilometer run, but she begins to question whether or not that was a good idea in this new episode. At the same time, Todd is diagnosed with gout.
